CHOOSING A FORMAT

Which pack suits which buyer

SALES CHANNEL	FORMAT THAT USUALLY FITS
Bulk farm collection and transport	30 egg tray
Commercial wholesale movement	30 dozen box
Smaller retail orders in transit	15 dozen box
Mid-sized retail offering	18 egg tray
Supermarket and boutique shelf	2x6 retail tray
Farm gate, direct to consumer	5 dozen carton

Not sure which formats suit your volumes? Describe your week to us — what you grade, where it goes, how it travels — and we will specify it for you. It is a short conversation and considerably cheaper than a pallet of the wrong tray.

Egg size labels

One colour per grade, so packers on the line and staff on the shop floor read the size at a glance rather than reading text. Supplied on rolls.

SmallMedium*Large*X Large*Jumbo

Why colour-coded

- Grade is legible across a packing bench, not just up close
- Fewer mis-grades reaching the customer
- Faster picking when an order mixes sizes
- Works the same for staff who read little English

Packing consumables

The rest of what leaves the packing bench — added to the same order, on the same invoice, on the same delivery.

HOW TO ORDER

Three steps, one point of contact

1

Consult & assess

We look at your production volume or your shop's retail needs and recommend the formats that fit.

2

Select & procure

You choose from this catalogue. Mixed pallets are welcome — trays, boxes and consumables on one order.

3

Deliver & support

Delivered on our Gauteng routes, with ongoing agricultural support if you want it.

ALSO AVAILABLE

Agricultural consultation — flock health and disease prevention, feed optimisation, housing infrastructure, supply chain logistics, and site assessments for commercial farms.

WHY ONE SUPPLIER

- One invoice and one delivery schedule instead of three
- Consistent quality from the farm tray to the retail carton
- Mixed pallets — trays, boxes and consumables on a single order
- Advice from people who already know your volumes
